TABLE SPEAKER SERIES

The Africa Table Speaker Series is a monthly colloquy and a platform for community interaction of people studying Africa or working in Africa. This community includes students, faculty, and staff at the University of Arizona, and the members of the Tucson community. The recent advances in digital technologies that popularized virtual meetings have ensured that anyone anywhere in the world can participate in the series either as a speaker or as an audience member. The series give speakers the opportunity to share their work on Africa with an audience that have mutual research interest in the continent. We believe that with the exchange of information and building a diverse community of scholars focused on topics related to Africa, we can leverage our unique experiences to learn from each other and productively engage with topics about Africa.
